

Endangered Creatures

Easier

Match the threat to the animal you think it applies to:

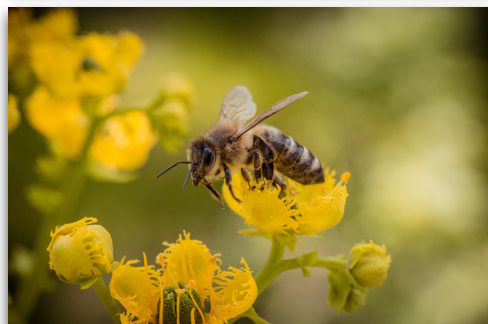

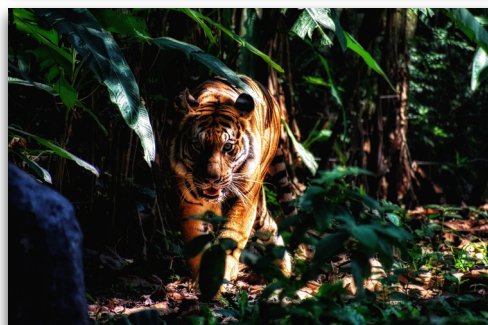

Some people think my tusks are precious, so poachers kill me and sell my tusks

Ice is melting because of global heating, but I need ice to live and hunt for food on.

I live in the rainforest, but the trees are being chopped down to create space for farms.

Harmful chemicals are sprayed onto the plants that I live near and eat. They make me unwell.

I am often hunted by people for my fur and bones, which they then sell around the world.

Harder

Fill out the missing parts of the table:

Animal	Habitat	Threat
Orangutan	South East Asian Rainforest	Rainforests are being cleared to make space for palm oil plantations, removing the habitat of this animal
Adelie Penguin	Antarctic
		Sea ice is melting, reducing this animal's habitat, and also making hunting for seals more difficult
Mountain Gorilla	Congo Basin, Central Africa
		This animal is being poached for its tusks, which are then sold illegally around the world.
Koala	Australia
